VALPARISO SHAKEN FROM FOUNDATIONS FIRE SWEPT

Cup Defenders Named by Committee
CARAMBA, AUK, VIM CHOSEN

Boats Selected to Sail Against the German Challengers Now in This Country.

Special to the Boston American.

MARBLEHEAD, Aug. 18.—The committee announced this afternoon that the trial races were ended and that the boats selected to defend the Roosevelt Cup are the Vim, owned by Trenor L. Park of New York; the Caramba, owned by C. H. W. Foster, and the Auk, owned by Charles Francis Adams, 2nd.

These three boats were selected because of the fine showing in the three trial races to-day.

The Vim won one race to-day and the Caramba two, while the Auk was second in two races and sixth in one other.

The Vim was designed by William Gardner of New York, while the Auk and Caramba were designed by E. A. Boardman of Boston.

The Caramba is of the extreme scow type, the Auk moderately so, and the Vim, which is a real boat, closely resembles the forty-one-footer Aspirant, designed by Gardner.

TO-DAY'S RACES.

First Race—Vim first, Caramba second, Sumatra third.

Second Race—Caramba first, Vim second, Auk third.

Third Race—Caramba first, Auk second, Spokane third.

Feature of To-day's Races Was the Showing of the Caramba, Which Won Two Contests.

CARAMBA STAR OF TO-DAY'S TRIALS IN SONDER CLASS

Special to the Boston American.

MARBLEHEAD, Aug. 18.—It was a great day to-day for the little yacht Caramba. In the trial races to select the American representatives for the Roosevelt cup contests against the German yachts Caramba crossed the finish line first in the opening race, but on elapsed time the race was awarded to Vim. But in the second race of the day, which followed immediately after the finish of the first, Caramba was first home, this time the Vim being second.

Caramba also took third brush of the day, defeating Auk, which finished second, and Spokane, which came in third. Vim, which did so well in the first two races, cut no figure in the third.

Designer Boardman personally sailed Caramba to-day, and to his skill at the tiller the boat's great showing to-day was not a little due.

The wind was light for the first race, but freshened to a good breeze for the second and third contests. The committee last night eliminated eleven boats from the contest, leaving only six to answer the preparatory signal to-day. Those left in the struggle were Caramba, Vim, Spokane, Sumatra, Bonidrel and Auk.

Vim Takes the First.

The Caramba was first over the finish line in the opening trial race to-day of the Sonder yachts, but the Vinm was given the victory on elapsed time. The folowing tables tell the story of the race:

OFFICIAL FINISH:

Caramba	11:42:26	Spokane	11:43:53
Sumatra	11:42:53	Bonidrel	11:45:11
Vim	11:43:24	Auk	11:46:25

OFFICIAL ELAPSED TIME:

Vim	1:01:37	Spokane	1:02:52
Caramba	1:02:07	Bonidrel	1:04:14
Sumatra	1:02:25	Auk	1:04:25

OFFICIAL TIME AT OUTER MARK:

Caramba	11:19:06	Spokane	11:20:43
Sumatra	11:19:40	Bonidrel	11:21:23
Vim	11:20:07	Auk	11:22:29

The start was made at 10:40. The official starting times are as follows:

Caramba	10:40:19	Spokane	10:41:03
Sumatra	10:40:28	Vim	10:41:14
Bonidrel	10:40:37	Auk	10:42:00

Auk was handicapped six seconds in crossing. Spokane caught a nice air, and at 10:50 had the lead, although to leeward. Auk and Bonidrel struck soft spots and dropped back.

At 11:10 Caramba had worked out into first place, while Sumatra was second. Caramba turned the windward mark at 11:19:00, followed by the Sumatra thirty seconds later. The others turned as follows:

Vim	11:19:56	Bonidrel	11:21:11
Spokane	11:20:32	Auk	11:22:20

Vim sailed the windward leg in the lowest elapsed time, and Caramba was second best. After turning the windward mark, spinnakers were set for the run home.

The first race to-day was a beat two miles to windward and return. The wind was light and streaky from the south southwest, and the haze was so thick that the shore could not be seen. The skippers of the six contestants were given explicit instructions to keep together as closely as possible on windward work. Any boat splitting tacks for any length of time is likely to be eliminated from the trials, as the committee finds it impossible to judge of the relative abilities of the boats when any of them take the lead through luck in finding stronger breezes by splitting tacks.

Caramba Wins Second.

The second was over a triangular course two miles to a leg, the first being a beat to windward, S. S. W.

The second leg was a reach east half north. The boats started at 12:25.

OFFICIAL START:

Caramba	12:25:06	Vim	12:26:45
Spokane	12:25:30	Auk	12:27:00
Sumatra	12:26:38	Bonidrel	12:27:00

The Auk was handicapped six seconds in starting and the Bonidrel thirty-four seconds. All boats crossed on the port tack, the Vim at the windward end of the line.

At the outer mark Caramba led. She rounded at 12:55, followed by the Vim and Sumatra.

Official time at outer mark:

Caramba	12:55:01	Auk	12:57:38
Vim	12:56:57	Bonidrel	12:58:15
Sumatra	12:57:17	Spokane	1:00:07

The Auk fouled the turning flag, but no damage was done. On the second leg all boats carried ballooners and spinnakers. At 1:15 the Caramba had increased her lead and the wind was freshening.

Caramba rounded the second mark well ahead of Vim. Sumatra appears to have gained a trifle on Vim.

Caramba crossed the finished line at 1:31:30.

Vim finished second, Auk htird, Sumatra fourth, Bonidrel fifth and Spokane sixth.

OFFICIAL FINISH SECOND RACE.

Caramba	1:31:55	Sumatra	1:33:28
Vim	1:33:07	Bonidrel	1:35:40
Auk	1:35:16	Spokane	1:37:34

OFFICIAL ELAPSED TIME SECOND RACE.

Caramba	1:08:49	Bonidrel	1:06:40
Auk	1:08:16	Sumatra	1:08:55
Vim	1:08:22	Spokane	1:12:04

A third race, two miles to windward and return, was started at once.

Spokane was the first over the line and Caramba second.

Official start, third race:

Spokane	2:10:06	Auk	2:10:35
Caramba	2:10:18	Vim	2:11:07
Sumatra	2:10:16	Bonidrel	2:11:26

At 2:20 the Caramba had worked past the Spokane and took the lead. She kept ahead of the fleet and rounded the outer mark at 2:43.

Caramba finished the third race first, Auk second, Spokane third, Sumatara fourth, Vim fifth, Bonidrel sixth.

OFFICIAL TIME AT FINISH THIRD RACE

Caramba	3:05:57	Sumatra	3:07:49
Auk	06:50	Auk	3:08:50
Spokane	3:07:27	Bonidrel	3:09:40

WILD STEERS IN STAMPEDE AT BRIGHTON

Thirty-four steers ran wildly through the streets of Brighton for several hours to-day. The animals were consigned to the Brighton Abattoir Company, and before they were captured six had been killed by the employes of the abattoir and the Brighton police.

The trouble started after two of the steers had made their escape from a cattle car while it was being unloaded at the abattoir yards. When these got away the men who had charge of them gave chase and this gave the others a chance to get out of the cars.

The animals ran through the streets and for a time the residential section of Brighton resembled a Western prairie. The residents were highly excited. One man was knocked down by the animals who had become wild upon gaining their liberty. He was not seriously hurt, however.

Captain Warren of Police Station 11 was one of the first to join in the chase. He summoned the reserves and they joined with the employes and citizens in the chase. The shooting of the revolvers seemed to terrify the animals all the more, and they ran upon lawns and through yards in the vicinity of the abattoir, tearing up flower gardens and grass plots as they went along. It was late this afternoon before the steers were all captured and the excitement subsided.

Hundreds of People Buried In Ruins of Stricken City, and Dead Lie In Street as Flames Rage—Night of Ruin and Terror.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—A cable dispatch received to-day from Valparaiso by Wessel, Duval & Co. of New York and Valparaiso confirmed the reports of the great catastrophe to the South American seaport by Thursday night's earthquake. The dispatch to the firm follows:

"Town nearly wiped out. Particulars when shakes cease."

Dead Lie in Streets as City Burns.

VALPARAISO, Chili, Aug. 18, via Galveston, Tex., Aug. 18.—Despair and panic have seized the inhabitants of this stricken city, which, shaken from its foundation Thursday evening and then swept by fire, has since been visited by continued earth tremors.

The seimic disturbances were constant yesterday and throughout the night. Everything is in utter confusion and the people have fled in terror to the hills.

In the general choas it is impossible to learn the number of dead or the extent of the damage. The city is in semi-darkness from the pall of smoke rising from burning buildings.

The water service has been destroyed. Not a railroad train has entered or left the city since Thursday night, and the fresh food supply is exhausted. People, afraid to enter their homes, are wandering the streets, crazed by the suddenness and the horror of the calamity.

Until the earth ceases trembling no organized effort to restore municipal order and carry out the work or rescue and alleviation will be attempted. Nothing has been done so far. Even the dead have not been carried to the morgues. Hundreds are inprisoned in the ruins of collapsed houses, but with the earth trembling violently at frequent intervals none are so foolhardy as to venture on the work of rescue.

Bank Officials Saved.

HAMBURG, Germany, Aug. 18.—The North German Bank today received from the Banco de Chile y Alemania at Valparaiso the following dispatch:

"All well. Bank building only slightly damaged. Many houses destroyed by fire. We are unable to state extent of damage. Banks closed."

LEFT DEAD MOTHER'S SIDE; GIRL VANISHES

SALISBURY, Aug. 18.—Catherine Meek, the nineteen-year-old daughter of George M. Meek, has disappeared from the home of her brother, Alexander Meek of Salisbury, and the police have been asked to find her.

Her mother died early in the week, and it was while the mother lay dead, before the funeral, that the daughter slipped away. This is the third time she has run away.

The missing girl is exceptionally pretty, with light, fluffy hair and dark complexion. The father, who is a silversmith, works in New York city.

SAY TREACHERY CAUSED $100,000 RUN ON BANK.

A rumor was in circulation this afternoon that treachery on the part of an employe was the cause of the failure of the First National Bank of Chelsea. The name of the employe has not been divulged but, accordingto the report, he has not been employed in the bank for some time. The alleged treachery consisted in tipping off some of the largest depositors to the effect that the institution was in a bad way and that it would be well to wihdraw their deposits before it was too late.

REPORT STENSLAND IS CAUGHT IN NORTHWEST

WOMAN LEADS CHICAGO MOB IN CHARGE UPON DOORS OF WRECKED BANK.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—The police this afternoon received a dispatch stating that a man answering thoroughly to the description of Paul O. Stensland has been arrested at Midway, British Columbia. The authorities place considerable credence in this report.

Flourishing a revolver and declaring she would kill Stensland if she could find him, a woman led a crowd of 200 in a charge on the doors of the wrecked Milwaukee Avenue State Bank to-day.

The crowd was made up of depositors who had been led to believe, through the order of Judge Brentano, that a 20 per cent. payment would be made immediately, and that they would get their money at once. Frenzied at the efforts of those in charge to prevent their entrance to the bank, and failing to understand that affidavits of deposit must be approved, the crowd refused to disperse.

Denouncing Stensland and all concerned with the bank, the crowd responded to the cries of the woman as she elbowed her way to the door of the bank.

Swinging the revolver around her head, she called on the officials to open the doors and pay her the money she had deposited. Balked in her effort to enter, she turned and delivered a harangue to the crowd. Excited by her, the crowd of depositors pressed close to the door, and were reaching a point where at a signal they might have stormed the bank, when the police arrived.

THOUSANDS ENJOY GLOUCESTER TRIP

No excursion for the tired and jaded city dweller equals in charm the trip to Gloucester and Cape Ann, called the "North Shore" route. It is the most fascinating way to leave Boston Harbor and the hot city. Two fine steamships, the Cape Ann and the City of Gloucester, make the run daily. They leave near State street elevated station on the north side of Central wharf at 10:15 a. m. Sundays and 10 a. m. week days. A good orchestra and every convenience for passengers on these steamers makes the trip comfortable as well as delightful.

VALPARAISO SWEPT BY EARTHQUAKE AND FIRE

HUNDREDS ARE BURIED IN RUINS OF THE BEAUTIFUL CHILEAN CITY

Death and Panic in Wake of Earth Shocks and Flames, City Seems Doomed to Utter Obliteration.

Special Cable to Boston American.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 18.—The Pacific Steam Navigation Company received following cable message to-day:

"Violent earthquake yesternight; heavy loss of property and lives; company's offices partially destroyed; ships have escaped."

BERLIN, Aug. 18.—The first news from Iquique, Chili, since the earthquake is contained in a private telegram received in Bremen, which states that the city was unharmed by the shocks which ruined Valparaiso.

A message to a local bank from Valparaiso says half the city, from the Almendral to Calle Bella Vista, has been destroyed. In this section are located many business and warehouses, as well as numerous private houses.

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 18.—Nearly all the houses in Valparaiso are reported damaged, either by the earthquake or fire. Shocks in the city continue, but they are milder. The flames have not been checked, and further loss is expected.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 18.—So violent were the vibrations of the Chili earthquake on the seismograph at the Johns Hopkins University that at one time the needle was thrown off the registering cylinder. More than fifty shocks were recorded, and the most violent disturbance caused the needle to move three and a half inches, when it slipped off the film.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—James and Alexander Brown, who trade with Valparaiso, have received the following message:

Severe earthquake. Commerce paralyzed. Town afire. Staff safe."

LONDON, Saturday, Aug. 18.—A dispatch to the Reuter Telegraph Company from Buenos Ayres, dated last evening, says:

"Telegraphic communication with Chili is still interrupted. Santiago and Valparaiso are completely cut off. The Pacific cables are only working from Iquique northward.

"It is certain that a number of houses have been wrecked at Los Andes."

2 SQUARE MILES OF BUILDINGS WRECKED

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Heavy loss of life and immense damage to property have resulted from the earthquake at Valparaiso according to a message received here to-day from the officers of the Pacific Steamship Company in the ruined city. The dispatch adds that the company's offices have been partially wrecked, but its floating property is undamaged.

Another dispatch received by a London business firm states that two squares, at one point, were wrecked and that the buildings on several avenues were destroyed.

The business firm of Lowther & Latias at Valparaiso wires associates in this city that business is being resumed in Valparaiso.

FIRE STILL RAGING IN STRICKEN CITY

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The business section of Valparaiso, Chili, is almost destroyed, and the fires which broke out following the earthquake are still raging. The residential section of the city has also suffered severely and many lives have been lost.

This is the news that comes in a brief dispatch received in this city to-day direct from Valparaiso. The stricken city is cut off from communication with other cities of Chili, as the inland wires are all down, and nothing definite is known as to what has happened in Santiago, the capital, and other cities which are in the usual earthquake zone of the country.

The earthquake struck the city without a tremor of warning. There were two distinct and separate shocks, following one after the other in rapid succession.

The first shock was felt almost at 8 o'clock. The city suddenly seemed to swing backward and forward. Then came a mighty jolt that toppled over many of the huge buildings. When the second shock rocked the city whole rows of buildings went down. Hundreds of persons went down to instant death with the falling buildings.

Imprisoned in Ruins.

Many others were left living but imprisoned in the ruins. Fire broke out in various parts of the city following the first shock. Every branch of the city's service is paralyzed, and the flames swept through the wrecked buildings unchecked. These fires continued to burn all day, and as night came down over the stricken city the flames lit up the heavens and the dull heavy clouds of smoke settled into the streets, where thousands of homeless people wandered aimlessly about.

The whole population is panic stricken. The calamity has proven too great for any one to care for anything except attending to his immediate wants. The full force of the blow which has fallen on the city is not appreciated even by the residents of Valparaiso.

That the business section of the city was doomed was known after the second shock had subsided. It was hoped for a while that the Bella Vista section on the hills behind the city, where the best residences are located, would escape serious damage. Fires soon broke out there, however, to add to the ruin and increase the panic of the people.

Communication Cut Off.

Communication on all sides to landward is cut off. The telegraph lines are down, and the railroad tracks at many points are badly twisted, rendering them useless. It is impossible to estimate the area of the district affected by the earthquake.

It is equally as difficult to give any idea of the number of casualties. It is believed, however, that several hundred persons lost their lives. Many bodies are still buried in the ruins. Landslides have occurred at different points about the city, adding to the loss of life.

Following the first shock, which came without warning and was of terrible force, a tidal wave swept in from the ocean. Many vessels were borne aloft by it and hurled high and dry ashore, where their wrecks are now lying. Just above the city one steamship lies nearly a half mile inland, her plates ripped and torn by rocks and her hull half buried in the sand.

The damage to the shipping is beyond computation. At the time of the catastrophe the harbor was filled with shipping from all ports of the world, many of the vessels being laden with rich cargoes. More than half of them are ashore and most of the latter it will be impossible to float again. Scores of seamen lost their lives as the great tidal wave swept the vessels ashore, and for many miles along the coast in the vicinity of the city the beaches are strewn with dead bodies and all kinds of wreckage.

WINTER; SUFFERING INTENSE.

The misery of the Chilian inhabitants is almost indescribable. It must be remembered that it is midwinter here, and that the rigors of the climate add to the suffering of the thousands who have been made homeless in the last thirty-six hours.

Women and children as well as men have crowded about the burning buildings in the different parts of the city as much for warmth as in the hope of saving what little remains of their property. The authorities aided by the military and police are doing everything possible to ameliorate the condition of the homeless, but it is almost impossible to provide shelter for them and the supply of food is almost exhausted.

Owing to the prostration of the telegraph wires only bare details have reached here from interior points, but everything goes to show that the zone of the disturbance extends for hundreds of miles not only up and down the coast but into the heart of the Andes. From all points come the same stories of houses thrown down, fires sweeping the ruins and thousands of people made homeless. All along the coast vessels are ashore, buried in from the sea by the huge tidal which seems to have swept its way for nearly three hundred miles.

Great Loss in Santiago.

Reports from Santiago, the capital of Chili, which lies back from the sea, in the foot hills of the Andes mountains, show that tremendous damage has been done, especially to the great public buildings.

TIDAL WAVE SWEEPS HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

Special to the Boston American.

HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—A tidal wave twelve feet high swept over a portion of the west coast of the island of Maui last night and caused much damage. So far as can be learned, however, no lives were lost. The wharf at the port of Maalea was washed away and the buildings at the landing were partially wrecked.

Some of the small vessels in the harbor were injured. Nothing is known here as to the cause of the disturbance but it is supposed to have been an earthquake shock or volcanic outburst somewhere in the Pacific.

The tide gauges here show a disturbance, apparently of distant origin. Beginning at 5:23 this morning, three waves an hour have been indicated, showing an oscillation from the normal tides of between three and four inches.

QUINCY POLICE SEARCHING FOR HOTEL FIREBUG

The police of Quincy are to-day looking for a firebug, who, they believe, set three fires, which were discovered at 9 o'clock last night in the Crescent Hotel, Quincy.

There were more than twenty five guests in the hotel at the time.

A strange man was seen coming from the hotel by Inspector of Police Daniel McKay and Patrolman Harry J. Mathews, who were a short distance away. They chased the man for a block, when Dr. E. B. Bushnell, a prominent physician, joined them. In the darkness the officers mistook the physician for the man whom they were chasing, and the stranger got away. When the firemen arrived the guests who had retired became excited but their fright subsided when they learned that the fires had done little damage.

The first fire was discovered by the chef. He smelled smoke, and when he went to the cellar to investigate, found that a mattress in one corner was ablaze.

A minute or two later one of the guests, on going into the parlor, found that a curtain was on fire, and then another curtain in the dining room was discovered to be burning.

When Inspector McKay and Patrolman Mathews heard the alarm of fire their suspicions turned toward the stranger whom they had seen coming from the hotel and run down the street.

He had gone only a short distance and they started after him. The guests of the hotel who were sitting on the porch joined in the chase. Dr. Bushnell was also on his porch and saw the stranger pass his house. Seeing the crowd of citizens and officers coming, Dr. Bushnell joined them. He had run but a short distance when the officers overtook him. After his identity was learned he was released.

BALL PLAYER CHARGED WITH HOMICIDE

Pitcher Yeager of Fall River Arrested, Result of Death of Burke of Lynn.

Pitcher Joseph Yeager of the Fall River New England League baseball team was arrested in Lynn to-day, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Thomas F. Burke, an East Boston lawyer and left fielder on the Lynn New England League team, who died at the Lynn Hospital August 11 from injuries received by being struck on the skull by a pitched ball by Yeager in Lynn on August 9.

The arrest was made by Inspector Fitzgerald and Officer Lynch of the Lynn police force on an order of Judge John W. Berry at Hotel Seymour, where Yeager was stopping with the Fall River team. His bail, which was fixed at $500, was furnished by Dennis J. Eagan, a Lynn business man. The case will be called next week.

Yeager was slated to pitch against Lynn yesterday, but the management was informed by the Lynn police department that he was to be placed under arrest, and requested that he be not used in the game. The management complied with the request, but had decided to pitch Yeager in one of the games of the double-header to-day.

Burke was struck on the left side of the skull by a fast inshoot thrown by Pitcher Yeager. He was picked up unconscious.

FIFTH'S BAND IN UNION ROW AT OTTAWA

Massachusetts Musicians Object to Non-Union Canadians and May Not Play.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 18.—The Ottawa Journal at noon to-day says:

"The band of the Massachusetts regiment, of Boston, will accompany that body to Ottawa to-morrow, but will not play at any affair at which the Forty-third band or regiment takes part.

Word was received to this effect by members of the local branch of the American Federation of Musicians to-day. The Fifth band is composed of members of the federation, and give as a reason for this action that the Forty-third band members are defaulters to the local union members.

If the Forty-third band lines up in the church parade to-morrow the Fifth band will decline to play. The visiting bandsmen will be entertained by the members of the local branch of the federation at Labor Hall. It is probable that a big combined band concert will be given on Sunday evening by the Fifth and Municipal band of Ottawa on Parliament Hill.

The Fifth Regiment and its band is now en route from the Framingham camp grounds to Ottawa, and late last night stopped at North Adams.

FAILS TO GET BAIL ON POLYGAMY CHARGE

On a charge of polygamy preferred by Grace Lynch of South Framingham Henry W. Hanson, formerly manager of a skating rink at Lexington Park, was to-day held in default of $800 bail until August 24 in the Cambridge District Court by Judge Almy. Hanson, who denies the charge, was placed under arrest following his marriage to Miss Kathleen Shortell of Lexington on last Sunday.

STATE LAW OUTRAGED TO SAVE COLE

In order to save Speaker Cole, the Essex County Commissioners have fixed a new district for him, comprising 1,528 voters. In number of voters it is probably the smallest district in the State. The next smallest district in Essex County has 2,177 voters, comprising four towns and two wards of Newburyport.

Cole's new district is confined to the two precincts of Andover. They were the only precincts he carried last year against Calvin Rea of North Andover, independent Republican, whom he defeated by only 325 votes. Cole had Democratic support last year and the prestige of being the leading candidate for the Speakership. This year he has his record as Speaker against him, and, believing it would prove fatal to him in the old district, the corporations favorable to him ordered the county commissioners to save him if they had to tear the spirit of the law to pieces.

"The crimes of the Essex county ring" have been the theme of many stories and speeches, but none of them has compared to this crime committed against the people of the county to save Cole. Middleton and North Andover, which he failed to carry last year, are tacked on to other districts and he is left with the two little precincts of his home town, which looks like the surest kind of a good thing. The law says representative districts shall be contiguous if possible, and as nearly equal as may be. Cole's district has contiguous component parts, but the equality, so far as other districts are concerned, is entirely lacking, as the following will show:

COLE'S DISTRICT, 1,528. Other districts vary from 2,177 for district 26 to 3,138 for district 10, to which has been added North Andover, half of the old Cole district.

WARD 18 DEMOCRATS PLAN BIG OUTING

A great outing under the auspices of the Ward 18 Democratic Club will be held at Fallon's Grove, Quincy, to-morrow. This club has already endorsed the candidacy of District Attorney John B. Moran for Governor and intend to launch his boom to-morrow before the people of Roxbury.

Councilman Thomas J. Fay and Daniel J. Curley, Jr., both candidates for representative, will be present and speak. A clambake and a New England boiled dinner will be served during the day.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

"MY BOY GAINED 30 POUNDS."

"My little boy had a severe stomach trouble and cough. He had no appetite and was very weak. The day he commenced taking Father John's Medicine his weight was 55 pounds. Now he weighs 85 pounds. His cough is gone; he has a good appetite and he is able to ride his bicycle and ride horseback and says he feels as well as ever. I am very thankful to know that there is such a grand Medicine and would recommend it as a body builder to every one who is suffering from any weakness." (Signed) Mrs. G. A. SAFE FROM WET SUNDAY, SAYS OLD PROB

Weather Man Predicts Drop in Temperature, but Declares for Dry Sabbath.

BREEZE HALTS SCORCHER

Positive assurance is given by the official weather man that to-day's cloudless sky and cooling breezes will remain with us until early to-morrow morning.

Then there will be a change for the worse. But it will not be a rainy Sunday—just a trifle cool and cloudy, but perfectly dry, in spite of a threatening sky.

Reference to the official record of temperatures since midnight will show that only for the breezes which arrived opportunely along about breakfast time the day would have been a scorcher. Inasmuch as light winds from the southwest are scheduled to be with us all day, it is safe to prophesy that weather conditions to-night will be delightful.

HEAD OF WRECKED BANK, ON DEATH BED, DEEDING OVER PROPERTY

The most remarkable feature of the Chelsea bank situation is the wresting from Sylvester B. Hinckley, President of the bank, of his signature to deeds transferring his property to the directors. Near death and too feeble to write, he is shown in the drawing making his mark on the legal papers which transfer much of his real estate to make good certain loans. His wife, his son, Sumner B. Hinckley, and Thomas Martin, the director who caused the investigation whcih closed the bank, were present at the signing of the deed.

The names of the makers of these four notes mean nothing to the directors. Evidently the bank had loaned the money on the indorsement of President Hinckley. But now that the bank has failed the directors and Bank Examiner Arthur Ewer are anxious to find out who these four persons are whose notes the president indorsed and to whom the bank had been loaning cash.

The makers of the notes are so wholly unknown to the business world that the directors cannot find out who or what or where they are.

It is against the law for a national bank to lend more than ten per cent. of its capital to any one person. But this law can be and is frequently evaded. A man, having borrowed to the legal limit, can get a friend to borrow for him.

Hinckley on Death Bed.

It would be possible for President Hinckley to get some friend, no matter if that friend had no security, to borrow from the bank, the bank taking President Hinckley's endorsement. The borrowers could be without credit, so far as the bank was concerned, provided the endorser was thought good. And the bank would naturally accept the endorsement of its own president.

Although there is much anxiety to know who the persons are who borrowed on these four notes, President Hinckley is too ill to give any information. He is on his death bed even now.

It is also hinted that forgeries are partly responsible for the bank's failure. Neither Examiner Ewer nor Director Thomas Martin will deny a report that names on some of the commercial paper held by the bank are forgeries.

This report of forgery, coupled with the fact that the bank had lent money to people unknown to the financial world, adds to the general complication and mystery attending the investigation.

Examiner Busy on Cash.

Bank Examiner Arthur Ewer, in charge of the collapsed institution, said to-day:

"I shall investigate all the papers and everything connected with this institution thoroughly. I expect to have a complete record of the assets and liabilities within three working days. I have not seen or examined any papers yet, having been busy balancing the cash."

When asked if, in his opinion, there had been any forgery in connection with the bank or any crookedness on the part of any one connected with the bank, Mr. Ewer said he could not answer these questions.

"Do you think there has been anything of a criminal nature in connection with the borrowing of any money from the bank, or anything that might be punishable by law?"

"I do not know," he replied, "but it seems to me that the only penalty that could be imposed on any borrowing transactions or on any act committed could be the withdrawal of the bank's charter."

Mr. Ewer further said:

"I have not communicated with President Hinckley in any way. I do not know whether this bank will be reorganized or not. I am going to close the bank at noon to-day and shall not work to-morrow if I can help it."

Accommodating Depositors.

The Winnisimmet National Bank, which is accommodating depositors of the First National by allowing them to cash checks to the amount of fifty cents on every dollar of First National deposit, will be open till 3 o'clock to-day, instead of closing at noon, as usual on Saturdays, to accommodate the extra rush of First National depositors.

President Near Death.

President Sylvester Baxter Hinckley of the First National Bank is on his deathbed at his luxurious apartments in the "Chestnut Hill," the apartment house he owns on Commonwealth avenue, Newton.

His death is expected any moment. Dr. C. R. Loring, the family physician, is in constant attendance. He says: "I cannot tell how long Mr. Hinckley will live. He is liable to die to-day. He may live a month. But it is not possible for him to live more than a few weeks."

President Hinckley is practically unconscious. He does not even know of the closing of the bank. He opens his eyes ocasionally and seems to recognize his son, S. Baxter Hinckley, Jr., who is constantly at his bedside. But he cannot talk or communicate with those about him.

His son said to-day: "Any business matters are now subordinated to my father's illness, business either of the bank or of the Bay State Cordage Company, with which I am connected."

Prominent Men Attend Funeral of Former Secretary of Commissioner O'Meara.

The funeral of Thomas F. Donahue, former private secretary to Police Commissioner O'Meara, was held at his late residence, No. 121 Cushing avenue, Dorchester, this morning, with a requiem mass at St. Peter's Church, Meeting House Hill.

Mr. Donahue died on Wednesday night, after a short illness. His death is particularly sad because of his marriage six months ago to Miss Alice Hawkins of Charlestown.

The celebrant of the requiem mass today was the Rev. F. Edward Kenney, of St. Peter's Church. The pall bearers were Representative John P. McDonald of Ward 16, James A. Dennis, Thomas A. Barry, Thomas F. Sullivan, John P. Dunn, John F. Sullivan, representing Mount Vernon Council No. 139, Knights of Columbus, and Maurice T. Clancy and Bernard Ford, representing the family. The body was taken to Holyhood Cemetery, Brookline, for interment.

The casket was completely buried in the floral tributes that had been sent by business and personal friends of the deceased. Among them was a wreath of white roses and palms from Police Commissioner O'Meara, a cascade of roses and asters from the Boston Journal, a pillow of roses from Mrs. Donahue, a mound and cross of roses and immortelles from the Potter Drug and Chemical Company, for whom he worked, and a large standing cross of roses from Mount Vernon Council, Knights of Columbus. Among those present were Police Commissioner O'Meara and Daniel O'Connell, former private secretary to Mayor Fitzgerald.

BATTLE OF MILLIONS IN WILD STOCK MARKET

WALL ST. ATTRIBUTES JUMP IN PACIFICS TO HARRIMAN-ROCKEFELLER WAR.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—With the belief that the tremendous rise in Union and Southern Pacific stocks is the outcome of a pitched battle between John D. Rockefeller and E. H. Harriman, Wall street wildly bought the securities to-day.

The floor of the stock exchange witnessed a day of such excitement as has not been seen since the days of the Northern Pacific corner in 1901.

It was reported in New York to-day that John D. Rockefeller was ill at his home in Cleveland, but Wall street interpreted this to mean that the Oil King was in a tearing rage over the developments in the Pacific stocks. It became known to-day that John D. Rockefeller, in conjunction with a number of other Standard Oil officials, "went short," this is said in expectation of a decline in Union and Southern Pacific, and that only recently did they begin to "cover" their "short" interest.

Expected Partial Panic.

It was stated in Wall street that the Standard Oil people expected a partial panic to result from their tactics on the market as retaliation for the attitude of President Roosevelt toward Standard Oil.

On the first sales of great blocks, Union Pacific stock soared 6½ points to 180, a new high record, while Southern Pacific swept upward 3¼ points to 90⅝, also a new high mark.

The rush of buying orders was like a torrent. Brokers seemed utterly regardless of the prices that would have to be paid for the stocks. Under this bull boom the Pacific securities shot upward a point and in some instances even more at a time.

Big Profits for the Kings.

Many millions' worth of Southern Pacific stock changed hands within a few minutes, while [illegible] of the Union Pacific securities was sold almost as the [illegible] opened. The buying continued [illegible] wildly right after the opening. The buying orders increased, and the general excitement on the floor of the exchange grew with them. The prices fluctuated a wide point between sales.

With the [illegible] bull movement in the Harriman stocks the other issues in the list also went up sharply. Pennsylvania [illegible] 10,000 shares at the opening, went up [illegible] points to 143¼. Smelters rose [illegible] points to 157, and Amalgamated Copper showed a gain on sales at 106¾.

The profits of Edward H. Harriman and his friends, including Sir Edward Cassel, who has been doing a little business in Southern Pacific for King Edward, were increased by several million by today's advance. King Edward's [illegible] is said to have netted the royal pocketbook many thousand dollars.

When the gavel fell at 12 o'clock 1,088,500 shares had changed hands, breaking the high record of February 25, 1905, when 1,272,891 shares were traded in.

KILLED BY "L" AT DUDLEY ST.

Apparently overcome by dizziness while standing on the edge of the train pit at the Dudley Street Elevated Terminal, an unidentified man fell into the pit in front of an incoming train at 7 o'clock to-day and was killed.

The station was jammed with in-bound morning passengers. In the sight of hundreds of men and women the unfortunate man was horribly mangled, three cars passing over his body. Women screamed as they saw the man tumble over into the train pit and disappear under the end of the first car.

The man had ridden up on to the surface car loop on the Jamaica Plain side of the station. As his car stopped he walked diagonally across the platform toward the train pit, making for the rear end as though intending to board the smoker when his train came in.

He was about five feet and seven inches tall, forty years old, and weighed about 170 pounds. He was dressed in a suit of dark, mixed material, with a three-button sack coat. He had a smooth-shaven face, dark, closely cropped hair and seemed like a laboring man or mechanic.

CHARGED WITH KNIFING BROTHER

LOWELL, Aug. 18.—Photios Mounounsis, a Greek laborer, was arraigned in the police court to-day charged with assault with a knife on his brother, Theodores, with intent to kill. He was held in $800 bonds for a further hearing. The brother is at the Lowell Hospital in a critical condition.

CITY TO OWN LIGHT PLANT.

ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 18.—The Common Council has decided to build a municipal street lighting plant to cost $70,000. The Public Service Corporation is supplying street lights at $85 a lamp, and people objected to the price as extortionate.

DODGING ISSUE OF OWNERSHIP

A meeting of the special committee of the Cambridge Municipal Ownership Leagues to consider the purchase by the city of the Cambridge Electric Light Company's plant and business, was held in Central Labor Union Hall last night. Augustus Seaver was chairman, and Edward Gallagher secretary.

Mr. Seaver said: "Despite the fact that a delegation of fifty from all over the local leagues and fifty from the Central Labor Union appeared at City Hall before the committee of the city government on lighting, sometime ago, and spoke of prompt efforts to acquire the Cambridge Electric Light Company, the committee has allowed the matter to drag until it seems assured no report either for or against the purchase by the city will be made before the primaries.

"This is a trick by means of which members of the committee unfavorable to municipal ownership hope to escape being forced to show their hands before election. It is now up to this league to work for a speedy report from the committee, so that the record of the members of the board of Aldermen and the Common Council on this proposition may be used in the city campaign."

There will be decided efforts on the part of the following special committee to bring forth a report in the near future: Chairman Seaver, Secretary Gallagher, John L. Welles, Edward Delaney, John L. MacLeod, Sidney J. and Martin J. Folan.

STARVING GIRL STEALS TO GET FOOD; ARRESTED

In Court Police Matron Pleads for Visitor, Friendless in Big City.

RELEASED ON PROBATION

Driven to commit theft through sheer starvation, pretty Margaret Edwards, aged about nineteen years, appeared before Judge Bennett in the Municipal Criminal Court to-day, shrinking, pale and trembling from fear and weakness. At her side, Miss Maynard, probation officer, faced the judge and told the young woman's sad story.

Margaret Edwards lives with her mother in a village in the western part of the State. Pressed by poverty three or four weeks ago she came to Boston to earn money for herself and her mother. She secured a place in a Boston hotel, and after working there a couple of weeks was thrown out of work through the hotel's closing for repairs.

In Hunger, Tramps Streets.

In desperation, alone in a big city, without a friend, Margaret hired a little room in Tremont street, South End, and tramped the streets seeking work. The little money she had after paying her room rent up until next week melted away rapidly.

Making her money go as far as it would last Monday night, after a meagre supper, Margaret was penniless. She could get nothing to eat and she was too proud to beg of strangers. On Thursday while wearily walking the street seeking work where everyone was busy, she met a young girl she had seen several times since she came to Boston.

She told her acquaintance her desperate plight and begged her for a few pennies to get some food. The acquaintance had none, but advised Margaret to slip into a big store, snatch up something and pawn it.

Arrested for Theft.

Hunger led Margaret to break the law against larceny. Theft was new to this starving and innocent girl, and she was caught. When she was brought to the city prison last night she was so weak that she could scarcely stand.

The prison matron, questioning her, brought out the fact that since Monday night the young prisoner had not had a bite to eat.

Miss Maynard begged for the girl's release on probation from Judge Bennett, promising to feed and shelter her until she should procure another place here or be sent to her home. Her request was granted.

300,000 VISIT WONDERLAND IN RECORD WEEK

By to-night the number of people who have passed the ticket takers at Wonderland-by-the-Sea at Revere, during the past seven days, will be about 300,000 in round numbers. The exact number will be found to vary but little either way from those figures.

This week has been the banner week of attendance at the Electric City. With seven days of uniformly good weather, the only fair week in its entirety that Wonderland has ever had, the crowds which have been pouring to Revere and into Wonderland each afternoon and evening have been increasing each day.

Never has Wonderland known such crowds as have attended each day during the last seven. On every day it was thought that surely the high point for the week would have been reached, but such is not the case. Each day made new records.

To-day bids fair to break all of the previous high attendance marks recorded at Wonderland. Yesterday was a record breaking Friday. Influenced by fair skies and delightfully bracing air, the people simply poured into Wonderland from the time the gates were opened until late in the evening.

If to-morrow is a fair and auspicious day, as it promises to be, the crowds at the Electric City by the sea at Revere will be simply enormous. Last night the board walk was jammed and crowded like it was on fair Sunday afternoons at the opening of the season.

The management of the popular resort for Greater Boston people is gratified beyond measure. Never has the proof of how much the people think of this great resort been so practically demonstrated as during this, the record week to this time in attendance.

LOOM FIXERS RESOLVE TO GO INTO POLITICS

The convention of the National Loom Fixers of America at its closing session to-day voted unanimously to go into politics. The national convention met in Templars' Hall, No. 724 Washington street. Thirty-six delegates from New England answered the roll-call. The following national officers were elected:

National president, Charles H. Colburn, of Saco, Me.; vice-president, Abraham Fielding, of Adams; secretary, John J. Purcell, of New Bedford; treasurer, John B. Lavoie, of Somersworth, N. H.; executive board, Joseph Jenery, of Lowell; John A. Farrell, of Fitchburg, and Samuel McCauley, of Chicopee.

The committee on resolutions recommended that all delegates go back to their different locals taking with them a list of the Massachusetts State Senators who voted against the labor measures which were introduced in the Legislature at the last session, and that they do everything in their power to defeat these men and to assist the Wage Earners' Club.

Miss Lawton is a Kentuckian. She is young, handsome and versatile and makes her first appearance on the opening night of the Castle Square season, Saturday evening, September 1, in the title role of "Mistress Nell."

DAUGHTER OF AL ADAMS, FAMOUS POLICY KING, SEEKS PLACE TO WED

EVELYN B. ARMIT, POLICY KING'S DAUGHTER, WHO LEFT NEWPORT TO WED

Failing to Find Suitable Official at Newport She Goes to Fall River.

Wins Divorce From Her Former Husband Under the Laws of Rhode Island.

NEWPORT, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Robert Lees Armit, daughter of "Al" Adams, famed as the policy king, is determined to wed again, and that immediately. By occupying a cottage here she was enabled to obtain a divorce under the Rhode Island laws from Robert Lees Armit, and yesterday when she went to the city clerk's office here to procure a marriage license she gave her name as Evelyn B. Armit. The man of her choice is a Mr. Napoleon, who has also been divorced.

She went to inquire if she could be married by civil authorities, a justice of the peace, for instance, and she was informed that the marriage could be performed by a justice of the Supreme Court only, and none being here she departed.

The couple left Newport, thoroughly disappointed, and went to Fall River where they expected to be married last night. A dispatch from Fall River, however, said they had taken out no license there.

In Rhode Island, unlike many other States, no Mayor or Alderman can perform a marriage ceremony. The bridegroom politely told his prospective bride that they had come to the wrong place after they had walked to the City Clerk here and the couple took the trolley car at the City Hall and jogged on to Fall River.

Mrs. Armit occupied a cottage in Bellevue avenue, and also one in Cottage street, where her mother and sister were her guests.

She was always loyal to her father while he was in prison, and she has never disowned her sire, always speaking of him in company in the kindest of terms. Mrs. Armit made a good impression here, she spent money freely and paid her bills promptly.

CONGRESSMAN HEARST POINTS OUT EVIL OF BLIND PARTY ALLEGIANCE

Honors Memory of Lincoln by Gift of Park to Home Town.

People's Hope in United Action, Declares Hearst

"There are Trust Republicans and Lincoln Republicans. There are Trust Democrats and Jefferson Democrats.

"No longer does the word Democracy define any definite doctrine and the word Republican express any particular principle.

"Under such conditions party devotion only divides the people's strength and fortifies their enemies who are united against them.

"Let the people unite in their own interest.

"Let the people vote independently and for the public good.

"Let them vote for honest men and honest measures, irrespective of party, and they will soon find power in the Republic that politicians will regard and even organized wealth will respect."

—Extract from address by Congressman Hearst at Salem, Ill.

Special to the Boston American.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 18.—Congressman William Randolph Hearst, of New York, in an address yesterday at Salem, Ill., the early home of Abraham Lincoln, to the Old Salem Chautauqua Association, pointed out the harmfulness of blind party allegiance, and urged for independence in voting. His address was as follows:

I think we will all agree that this American system of government was founded to express the will of the people and to be controlled by the majority of the voters.

I maintain that blind party allegiance tends to interfere with these aims and objects of our government, and is responsible for most of the political evils under which we suffer to-day.

Minority Holds Balance of Power.

I maintain that these evils will never be remedied until the people vote carefully and discriminately for good men and good measures, irrespective of party prejudice or political bias of any kind. If a very large proportion of the people vote blindly for one party or the other, the control of government is really left in the hands of a small minority or balance of power that transfers its vote from one party to the other according to its ideas or interests.

This variable vote will always be a determining factor in elections.

Certainly, therefore, the conditions demand that this independent vote shall be as large and as representative as possible, in order best to carry out the admitted objects of our government.

Conduct Politics for Own Power.

We know that Ryan and Rockefeller and Morgan and Belmont have no party prejudice, but conduct their politics for their own pocket and according to the maxims laid down by Jay Gould.

Mr. Gould said before an investigating committee: "When I am dealing with Republicans I am a Republican. When I am dealing with Democrats I am a Democrat. When the district is doubtful I am doubtful. And all the time I am an Erie railroad man."

To-day there are great issues, the same issues that have divided people since human society was formed.

Lincoln said, "There are two principles that have stood face to face from the beginning of time, and will ever continue to struggle."

It is the same principle in whatever shape it develops itself. It is the same spirit that says, "You toil and work and earn bread and I'll eat it." No matter in what shape it comes, whether from the mouth of a king that seeks to bestride the people of his own nation and live by the fruit of their labor, or from one race of men as an apology for enslaving another race, it is the same tyrannical principle.

"You Earn Bread, I'll Eat It."

The same issue exists to-day in trust domination, trust oppression, trust extortion. There is still a class that says: "You toil and work and earn bread and I'll eat it." But neither of the old parties distinctly represents either side of the issue.

The independent voter with the best intentions often meets with much difficulty and deception.

He sometimes finds that the man he has trusted has been captured by the corporations.

Unhappy examples of such cases are Grover Cleveland, in his second term, and District Attorney Jerome.

The people supported each of these men, believing them to be true and their friends, and the corporations added their support, knowing them to be their chattels.

Machines Combine Against People.

It may be set down as an axiom that the corporations never support a man that they do not expect to use. Again, the independent voter frequently finds little opportunity for a judicious vote, the machines of both parties having combined against the people and united in the corporation service.

Such a situation existed in New York last Fall. The machines of the two old parties had apparently entered into a "gentleman's agreement" for a division of the spoils, with an understanding that a corporation Democrat should be elected mayor at that election and a corporation Republican Governor at the next.

Revert to First Principles.

Our idea is to revert to the first principles of the Declaration of Independence, which Jefferson, the founder of the Democratic party, wrote, and from which Lincoln, practically the founder of the Republican party, drew his every inspiration.

Lincoln, speaking in Independence Hall on February 22, 1861, said:

"I only say that all the political sentiments I entertain have been drawn, as near as I have been able to draw them, from the sentiments which originated in, and were given to the world from this hall. I have never had a feeling politically that did not spring from the sentiments embodied in the Declaration of Independence.

Will Enter upon Campaign.

We will enter upon a campaign this Fall in New York to sustain the sacred American right of a free ballot and a fair count.

In the last election the people of New York were disgracefully defrauded. We can convict the machines of fraud. Our opponents, by their action, admit fraud, and seventeen convicts sent to the penitentiary prove that fraud.

But both parties have entered into a criminal combination to deny to the people of New York an honest count of the ballots actually cast. They have shared the responsibility for such revolutionary acts. Let them share the responsibility before the people this Fall.

HEARST GIVES PARK TO HOME TOWN OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Special to the Boston American.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 18.—The site of the New Salem Mill, famous because of its association with the early life of Abraham Lincoln, has been bought by William Randolph Hearst and presented to the Old Salem Chautauqua Association.

The property presented by Mr. Hearst, he provides, must be maintained forever as a national park. It contains sixty acres, for which $200 an acre was paid. The grounds are adjacent to the fine campgrounds of the Old Salem Association, which is one of the oldest and most prosperous of its kind in Illinois, and it agreed to comply with the spirit and letter of Mr. Hearst's proposition. The grounds are within a short distance of Petersburg, the county seat of Menard County and twenty miles north of Springfield, and possess ample railroad accommodations in all directions.

NATIVES OF DUBLIN MEET TO-MORROW

An important meeting of the Dublin County Association of Boston will be held to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock, in Committee Room, No. 1, at No. 694 Washington street. All natives of Dublin and their children are eligible and are invited to attend.

SLICK MAN WANTED FOR CONVENTION

Quincy Machine Looking for Man to Take Job Rejected by Thayer.

COMMITTEE IS PUZZLED

Wanted—A "slick" chairman for the Democratic State Convention who will attempt to carry out the orders of the Gaston-Quincy machine and take a chance of being pushed off the platform.

Former Congressman John R. Thayer might take the job if the convention could be held in Worcester, where he lives, but he will have none of the job in Boston.

Josiah Quincy would take a chance, only he does not like the idea of physical exercise.

It is hoped by the bosses that Congressman William S. McNary of Boston will agree to take the job, but he insists that he won't take it for the purpose of carrying out orders.

To-day the politicians are laughing at the funny things that happened at the meeting of the State machine yesterday.

Colonel William A. Gaston was not there, but his orders were carried out to the letter by able lieutenants.

Josiah Quincy, chairman of the State Committee, did the driving in the approved State street style, but Daniel H. Toomey got the air brakes out of order several time and came near causing trouble.

Now that Henry M. Whitney has agreed to finance the campaign if he can be handed the nomination for Governor, Quincy recommended that the convention be held earlier than he had intended when there was no victim in sight.

All Chances Eliminated.

With Whitney in the field he wanted all chances eliminated, and therefore proposed that the State convention be held on Thursday, October 4, in Tremont Temple, to be called to order at 10 o'clock in the morning.

One of the other Quincy ideas—to reduce the number of delegates in the convention by raising the basis of apportionment—was too raw for even some of his own element, and was abandoned. The basis remains the same as usual, one delegate for each 200 votes cast for the candidate for Governor the preceding year, and at least one for every town and every ward of a city. This will make 1,054 delegates to the State convention. The original machine scheme was to make the basis one delegate for each 300 votes cast for Governor last year.

The smaller the convention the better the Whitney chances, is the way the machine leaders had it figured out. That was on the general supposition that it is easier to "reach" a few delegates than a large number.

Toomey Threw Bomb.

The program was proceeding smoothly when Toomey threw his first bomb. In the past Quincy has invoked the committee rule that no member who has not paid his assessment can take part in the meetings.

"I would like to ask a hypothetical question, Mr. Chairman," said the obstreperous one from Springfield.

"Oh, very well, ask it, if you think it will do you any good," said Quincy, feelingly.

"Supposing a man has been elected to this committee and has not paid his dues or assessment, would he be in good and regular standing and entitled to a vote?" asked Toomey.

There was a commotion. Congressman John A. Keliher of Boston just then remembered that he had not sent in his check, and said he would attend to the matter at once, only he did not happen to have his own check book with him. Several of the other "leaders" squirmed and remarked that they intended to pay up just as soon as they returned home.

Feared a Challenge.

"Do you challenge the right of any of those present to vote, Mr. Toomey?" asked Quincy. "If you do, you should name the members you challenge. As for the hypothetical question—as for that, Mr. Toomey—I shall decide it when it is necessary."

"That for me, eh?" said Toomey. "Well, I do not intend to challenge any of the members who have not paid. I simply want to know if the unpaid members are to have all the say this year."

As a result several membership dues were received by the treasurer. At one other time during the meeting there was talk about checks and balances. The treasurer reported that there was a deficit of over $600 which ought to be cleared up, and Humphrey O'Sullivan of Lowell let it be plainly understood that he was disgusted with the talk about the committee's debts.

"How much is it?" asked Humphrey.

He was told again.

"Well, I'll give a check for the whole business, and let's hear no more about it."

Blank checks, pen and ink were immediately set before him.

Members of the committee were given to understand it is the expectation of the bosses that Congressman William S. McNary will be induced to act as the permanent chairman of the convention.

No Funny Business.

It has been intimated pretty strongly that the friends of District Attorney John B. Moran will not stand for any funny business at the convention—that they will not allow the State machine to seat city employes of Boston in the convention with orders to rough through the machine orders, and that the chairman who attempts to run things will be lifted bodily from the platform. Quincy does not like the physical force suggestion, and he will keep out of the danger zone.

McNary is suggested as a compromise chairman, it being said that he is friendly with both contestants, and would try to be fair to all parties. Ex-Mayor John H. H. McNamee of Cambridge, who was bitterly opposed to Quincy and Gaston last year up to the very day of the State convention, says now that he wants Quincy for permanent chairman.

"We need a slick fellow for the place," said McNamee.

"Why not an honest and fair man?" asked one who heard him make the remark.

"Oh, that's all right, so far as it goes, but a slick one is necessary for this job," replied McNamee.

"Why not say tactful instead of slick?" was asked.

"All right, say tactful," said McNamee, "but I insist that he must be slick."

ACCUSED OF GETTING A LOAN BY FRAUD

Police Inspectors Patterson and Wolfe to-day arrested Joseph H. Haley, fifty-three years old, of No. 285 Norfolk street, Cambridge, on the charge of obtaining under false pretences $125 from George F. Monahan of Charlestown, who conducts a saloon at No. 216 Friend street. Monahan is well known in Democratic circles in the State.

Monahan says that Haley borrowed $125 from him on a piano which he claimed to own. He says Haley had no piano.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Boston, Aug. 18.—The Detroit Tigers opened a four-game series with the Boston Americans at the local park this afternoon. The fine baseball weather was responsible for the large crowd.

Both teams moved with snap and dash before the game. The Collinsites tried hard to break the ice of three straight defeats, which they had suffered since they arrived home.

The Detroits played with the confidence inspired by their two straight victories over the Highlanders, and were hopeful of making a clean sweep of the present series with the Pilgrims.

George Winter, who has been ill for some time, was carded for the box by the Bostons. "Wild Bill" Donovan was the choice of Bill Armour, manager of the Detroits.

BLONDY WON FIRST RACE AT THE SPA

Special to the Boston American.

SARATOGA, Aug. 18.—Saratoga reached the cap and climax of her whirl of giddy pleasure here to-day, when over 10,000 of the best dressed and most prodigal patrons of horse racing in the world assembled for the annual renewal of the $40,000 Great Republic stakes and the yearly running of the far famed and aptly named Hopeful stakes of $25,000 for two-year-olds The former was for three-year-olds and up, at one and a quarter miles, while the sensitive young juvenile thoroughbreds went through three quarters of a mile in the Hopeful.

Overnight the filly Whimsical, the Sanford's Mohawk II, and the Madden-Hitchcock filly Tangle were attracting most attention.

In a speculative way, the tide ran high. two hundred and one bookmakers handling the money of the great throng. Probably $1,000,000 changed hands this afternoon on the result of the six races. An hour before the call of the first race, Broadway presented a stirring spectacle. The down-town thoroughfare enjoyed a parade of the smart folk on foot and in carriage for half an hour. It was a show in itself. Then came the exodus out to the race track. Thousands of carriages and autos conveyed the throngs up Union avenue to the course. It was Saratoga's greatest racing afternoon.

The Results.

TO PREVENT TROUBLE TO-DAY CHICAGO CLUB ARRANGES FOR

POLICE TO GUARD M'GRAW

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—John J. McGraw, leading his scrappy New York ball team, will open the series on the West Side grounds this afternoon and make the crucial effort to wrest the National League leadership from Chicago.

The series of four games, three scheduled and one postponed, promises to be the most exciting in baseball history, and the bitterest, because the Chicago team is furious at McGraw's recent slap at Chicago by excluding the umpires from the field. The bitterness among the players is li[illegible] compared with the bitter feeling against New York, especially against McGraw, among the Chicago fans, and great preparations to roast McGraw have been made.

Meantime the Chicago management, determined to protect the manager from the effects of his own actions, has taken every precaution to save him from violence and so far as possible from insult.

Arrangements have been made for 110 policemen and scores of private detectives to shield the New York players and prevent any attempts to injure or abuse them.

A bodyguard will surround the New York bench. McGraw is still under suspension by President Pulliam for using certain language toward Umpire Johnstone, and this may keep him off the field entirely during the series.

The most spectacular demonstration of to-day will be the delegation from the Board of Trade, which practically has secured a corner on all the boxes in the lower part of the stand. Stanchions for flags will be placed at the corner of each box and on each stanchion will be a flag, white, bearing McGraw's picture and the word "Muggsy."

The flags, white and black, will bear across them a single streak of yellow and that color scheme will be observed in all the Board of Trade decorations.

Arrangements have been made by the traders, who will come out in automobiles, accompanied by their own band, to send up kites and then float banners over the ground, all with the streak of yellow through them. Besides this, hundreds of toy balloons, bearing McGraw's picture and the yellow streak, have been prepared, and each bears the motto, "New York going up." In every inning, if Chicago is scoring, these balloons will be turned loose in flocks.

Arrangements to accommodate the record-breaking crowds have been made. Seats have been placed around the field and ropes stretched to hold back the people.

GLIDDEN TROPHY COMMISSION WON'T MEET UNTIL SEPTEMBER

BY J. C. KERRISON.

W. C. Kelsey, the winner of the Deming trophy, arrived in Boston yesterday afternoon and immediately called upon the men with whom he had associated on the recent A. A. A. tour. The results of this little visit was the holding of a special re-union at the famous Ferncroft Inn in Danvers yesterday evening. Manager F. J. Tyler of the Maxwell-Briscoe Boston Co., which at present holds both the Deming trophy and the four cylinder Maxwell, with which it was won, called the clans together and Kelsey was tendered a nice little complimentary dinner, his associates of the Maxwell Company together with the newspaper men of this city comprising the party. Mr. Kelsey drove the car with which he captured the trophy, which also carried the BOSTON AMERICAN representative on this as it did throughout the long tour. Some half dozen cars were necessary to transport the passengers to and from Ferncroft. Taken all in all it was a most enjoyable occasion. It was interesting to note that Mr. Kelsey believes, as does Mr. Wing, that there might have been worst conditions on the tour than those experienced, and that he is willing to enter another such open competition a year hence. He believes the committee did its utmost to make things satisfactory and to enforce the rules and regulations of the tour with equity and fairness to all.

* * *

Speaking about the tour brings to mind the fact that there will not be a meeting of the Glidden trophy commission until about the time for the holding of the Vanderbilt contest. Then it is believed a full meeting of the commission will be held, and the report of the A. A. A. touring committee read and accepted. There can be no question but that the committee will decide to permit the trophy to remain in possession of the Buffalo Automobile Club for another year. There seems to be a strong desire to send the tour South next year, and already a possible route is being mapped out. Mr. Glidden has ordered thirteen silver medals, one of which will be presented to each entrant who finished the tour with a clean score.

* * *

R. R. Gibbs, manager of the telegraph office connected with the Treasury Department at Washington, arrived in this city yesterday. He is on a two weeks' tour with his Reo and without spending any great time in Boston continued on his way to Maine.

* * *

An important move in connection with the disposal of their product is announced by the Corbin Motor Vehicle Corporation of New Britain, Ct., in taking over the New York agency of the E. T. Kimball Company, including store lease, office fixtures, etc., located at No. 1779 Broadway, New York city.

Mr. Lafayette Markle, who has been connected with the company for some years, will be the New York manager, and the change goes into effect immediately.

Mr. Kimball will, however, retain the Boston agency for the Corbin car, having taken one of the most prominent stores in the motor mart in this city.

* * *

H. A. Hauser of Akron, Ohio, spent yesterday in Boston on his trip through the New England States. Mr. Hauser has toured in his Cleveland car from his native city to this point, and proposes to continue along to the Canadian border line in Maine. He will tour back home later in the month, and if he has no more mishaps than already experienced will cover over 1,000 miles without any adjustments or repairs.

* * *

R. R. Ross has just returned from the Cleveland factory of the Peerless Motor Car Company thoroughly delighted with the car and outlook for 1907. He says this year's car was a dandy, the new one will be even better.

* * *

Mr. E. J. Brown, a prominent merchant of South street, this city, yesterday purchased through the Imperial Automobile Company one of the well-known air-cooled Aerocars.

TAD SEES A RACE IN SPA "SMART SET"

BY TAD.

SARATOGA, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Geewhatarell gained three laps on Mrs. Sinkitt early this morning in the veranda handicap. The former turned to take a peek at a new arrival, and while dozing lost her pace, which was quickly taken up by Mrs. Sinkitt. The latter is the choice for the place now, and a big wad was sent in last night on her to win. She is a keen contender, and if her feet hold out she is sure to be in the money.

Mrs. Rocks is out of the running altogether. Old man Rocks, the owner, is to blame for the overweight. She is carrying 12 pounds of glass around her neck, and nothing under a team of oxen ever carried such weight before.

Papa and Mrs. Graft, the Tiara Stable entry, are way back. Papa took a tumble on the turn this noon, looking at a passing carriage, and sprained his neck.

Pickpockets are beginning to blossom now and many a grand dip has come off in the past two days. What the bookies at the track miss the dips get. One gent was frisked for a watch and race track badge to-day.

Canfield's is deader than Jerome's office, and the visitors are getting daffy on any old kind of a bet. In restaurants you see three or four of them betting on the waiter's name. On the street corners they are betting on the color of the next horse around the corner.

In cafes they bet on the date of coins, and in a certain cigar store here wager slot machines are running full blast—they are thicker than flies. You play the machine with nickels, but instead of winning a "bit cigar" they slip you one of those water-proof G. W. C. They are the original friendship breakers, and, as Billy Baxter said, smell as though some one was shoeing horses.

A horse fell down on Broadway this morning in front of the States Hotel and at least one hundred of visiting horsemen and pikers gathered around to slip advice on how to get him up. For two hours they tickled his feet, put gravel in his ears and slipped blankets under him, but not one was able to get him on his feet. Finally, the poor skate broke an ankle and was shot. Well, a horseman doesn't have to know a little thing like that.

Lillian Russell had the necks working again this afternoon as she sat in a box in the grand stand. She just hates that mob to walk by, slip the big glim up her way and sigh.

The poolroom men are having a great time outside the fence. Since the club shut them out from the news and put big pieces of canvass up to stop their peeking they have erected a pole that looks as high as the Park Row Building. On top of this they have a small platform where a gent with the glasses sends down the news. The club threatens to build a wall one hundred feet high at the end of the track, and then the poolroom men will have to either get a balloon or an airship.

At the feed counter in the track to-day Corned Beef and Cabbage was played from 4 to 1 down to 6 to 5. Irish Stew was a close second, played down to 7 to 5. Roast Beef and Kidney Stew were long shots. The chef scratched the Harp Turkey, as it is being played too strong, and then second choice took a jump.

The Beef and Cabbage will be entered again to-morrow.

BOWEN GETS MEDAL.

FINAL MATCH AT NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 18.—In the final match of the woman's championship doubles to-day Miss Marion Fenno and Miss Eleanora Sears defeated Mrs. Barge-Wallach and Miss Edna Barger in straight sets, 8—6, 6—4.

It was the most brilliant tennis ever seen at an amateur tournament for women and brought out a distinguished gathering of the wealthy cottagers.

Miss Fenno played a remarkably steady and consistent game, which, with the spectacular and erratic work of Miss Sears, was too strong a combination for the defeated team.

MALACHI NOW HAS MONTREAL

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 18.—There is trouble in the Montreal Club. Malachi Kittredge, former catcher of the Washington and Cleveland teams, arrived here orders of the owners of the Montreal club, immediately deposed Manager James Bannon and assumed control.

Bannon says he will hold the owners to recognition of his contract.

Some of the players are sore and say they will side with Bannon. Kittredge says the owners became dissatisfied with Bannon's management, and that they had made him an attractive offer, including a block of stock.

Kittredge to-night released Bannon.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 18.—For three days the nine Tenneys are due to play on our diamond and there is more than a possibility that the Reds are going to take revenge on the Hub visitors for treating them so shabbily on their last visit to the coast. There won't be any easy chair games where the fans have talking feats and forget to pay attention to the game. The Reds are playing a better article of ball and the attendance has been on the increase of late. The Boston team is just the bunch to come in at such an opportune time, for they have a faculty of giving game away to the team that needs them, and the Reds do that.

Skipper Tenney was undecided who should go in the box this afternoon. Probably Dorner will be slated for the opener.

HOUR RACE AT REVERE TRACK

An hour race behind pace will be the big event at the Revere track to-night with Will Stinson of Cambridge, Menus Bedell of New York, and Elmer Collins of Lynn riding the distance. Jimmy Moran was obliged to drop out as he was suddenly taken ill.

It will be the first long distance race of the year and starts about 9 o'clock, giving the fans ample time to catch their trains.

It will furnish exciting racing, as the men will be constantly passing and repassing each other in the distance. Stinson has made a record for hour riding and will endeavor to improve on it. Young Collins will have a severe test of riding ability and Bedell will have a fine chance to show his powers at plugging.

There will also be a ten-mile open race for amateurs, with prizes on every mile, making ten races in one.

LOCAL BOXERS AT WEIGHT

Local enthusiasts on boxing are waiting with anxiety the bout scheduled for Chelsea next Tuesday night, when Matty Baldwin and Dave Deshler will hook up in a fifteen-round contest to a decision. That the match is a star one is admitted on all sides, especially among the sports who witnessed the fierce draw indulged in by the same pair less than a year ago.

Both lads are already at the stipulated weight, 130 pounds, and it is certain that both will be strong and powerful.

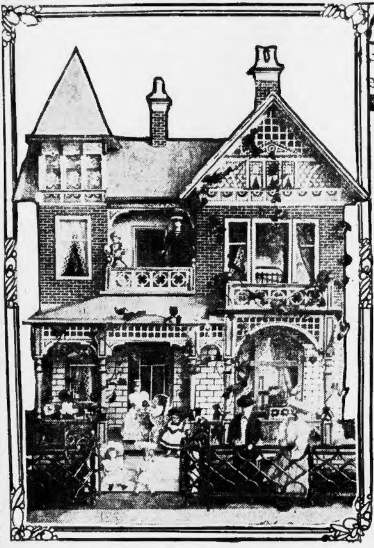
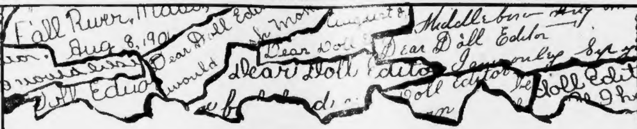
WRITE TO-DAY AND TRY TO WIN THE DOLL'S HOUSE



ANOTHER VIEW OF THE DOLL HOUSE WHICH WILL BE GIVEN TO SOME LITTLE GIRL



HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO GO ON A PICNIC WITH THE HAPPY FAMILY?

"I THINK," said Mrs. Happy, "that it is time we had a picnic."

"Oh, goody, goody," cried all the children. "Where will we go and when will we go?"

Mrs. Happy thought a while and then said she thought the next day but one would be a good day.

The morning of the picnic they were awake at dawn and tiptoed to the window to see what kind of a day it was.

There was the old sun just rising bright and smiling.

All through breakfast they could think of nothing but the picnic.

Dorothy looked after the baby while Marjorie helped get the lunch ready.

Harold ran between the barn and the kitchen reporting progress.

"Oh, girls," he said, "we are going to have the loveliest picnic that ever was."

[illegible] took a pretty nice luncheon when it was all [illegible].

There was cold chicken all nicely cut up, with heaps of bread and butter.

There were a delicious salad of lettuce and tomatoes and a bag of beautiful fruit.

There were chocolate cake and cookies and a big bottle of lemonade and a bottle of milk.

At 5 o'clock they had supper on the beach, and such appetites you never heard of!

The Happy family ate up every scrap of the luncheon.

Before dark they started home tired and content.

Would you like to own the Happy family and their [illegible] for your own?

Then write to the Doll House Editor.

Tell how you would take care of a house and babies of your own if you had them.

Address your letters to the Doll House Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, Boston.

AND HATS, TOO

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

First I would get their breakfast, then hang the bedclothes out the window to air. Then I would clean my house by sweeping it, dusting it, and washing the floors. If the windows were dusty or dirty I would wash them. Make the beds and get dinner ready at 12 o'clock. After dinner I would wash the dishes and tidy up. I would take the children out for a walk or I might take them to a beach. I would dress them neat and keep their clothes clean. I would make their clothes myself, and hats, too.

LIZZIE INGRAHAM, 9 years.
No. 11 Tabor place, Brookline.

NOT SLACK A BIT

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

If I had the "Happy House" I would see that it was always tidy. Once a week I would have the house thoroughly cleaned. The family shall have their meals regularly every day, and they must not eat between meals. Every night I will take the baby and Harold and go to the store and buy the BOSTON AMERICAN while nurse has a rest. I will see that the children are not slack the least bit. They must obey Mr. and Mrs. Happy. I am sure the "Happy Family" will be very happy with me.

FLORA IRISH, 12 years.
No. 79 Bowdoin street, Winthrop.

LIKES TO READ

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

If I kept house I would get up early, light the fires, dress the children, then get breakfast. Afterwards I would wash dishes, tidy the house. It would then be time to bathe baby and put her to sleep. While baby sleeps I should get dinner. After dinner, with the dishes done, I should dress and wash children and myself, take them out for a walk. Then I would get supper. Supper dishes washed, I would put baby to bed. Afterwards I would read to the older children. And then I would put them to bed, too. Then I would read myself.

MARGARET GUERIN, 10 years.
No. 30 Courtland street, Middleboro.

MAMMA'S HELPER.

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

I am mamma's little helper. I am the oldest of six children, and if I had a house I would keep it sweet and clean. I would be loving and good to my children. I would keep them clean. I would go to market myself and pay cash and get the best. I would save a little every week, go to church every Sunday and help bring my children up Christians.

BEATRICE DANSESEAU, 10 years.
No. 7 Pleasant street, Webster.

WOULD TEACH MANNERS

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

I would get up early in the morning and get my husband's breakfast and send him to work; after he had gone I would wake the children and get their breakfast. In the afternoon I would take the children out for a walk. I would teach my children manners. I would give them plenty of light food and fruit. I would treat my children kindly, and keep them clean.

BRIDGET RIDGE, 10 years.
No. 144 Bower street, South Boston.

NOT OLD LADIES

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

I would like to have such a pretty house and would try my very best to keep it nice and neat. I would wash, iron, dust and mend and try to have my children be good and polite, but wouldn't try to make them like old ladies.

Is Your Girl Going to Boarding School?

GOING away to boarding school often does much good to a girl.

There comes a period in the lives of the members of both sexes when some external influence is of great utility, if not a necessity. Girls at this period scarcely comprehend their proper position in life, and require to be reduced to their proper proportions, as scientific men would say.

Home influence must not be discounted, yet influence is not sufficient with many girls. They themselves discount the value of home, or fail to recognize the full value of it unconsciously.

It may be, moreover, that the home discipline is not strict enough; the parents yield to whims, forgetting that one must sometimes be cruel in order to be kind!

We have this fact on good authority; it is a truth aptly expressed in a paradox.

In the end, the girl becomes wilful, difficult to please, dissatisfied.

A Spoiled Child

In the course of a wide experience of girls, the writer has seen many instances of the good done by going away to school. In one case the girl could not eat unless the very best of everything was placed before her. The fond parents, fearing that she might be going into a decline, gave these tit-bits to her; they were also careful to keep her free from much school or other work and from fatigue of all kinds, while her sisters were very active in the house and elsewhere.

If this had continued the girl would most probably have gone into a decline, for without question she had herself come to believe that she was very delicate.

A keen-eyed friend persuaded the parents that they really ought to send the girl to a good boarding school to finish her education, and this advice was acted on.

Necessary Restraint

The girl had to submit to restraint and do as others did; as she received no special tit-bits her appetite grew more robust after two or three days, and, in the words of the friend, that school was the making of her.

Going away to school in all cases has the effect of making the girls appreciate the home.

They are also taught how to obey, a most necessary acquirement for every one, but which is not always inculcated to the proper extent at home.

There is a good deal of wholesome levelling up at a boarding school.

FOR THE SUMMER COMPLEXION

ALL girls who want a pretty, healthy glow on their skins should eat plenty of fruit, and also drink before meals a tumbler of very hot water.

Hot water has a wonderful effect on the skin; it helps to purify the blood, and also promotes the circulation. But while water is excellent for drinking purposes, in the warm weather it is not wise to use it for the face very often.

The temptation is to bathe the face at all hours, but this soon causes a spotty skin, for in Summer bathing with warm—never cold—water twice a day is quite sufficient for the face.

It is often very difficult to avoid freckles at this time of the year. The first thing to be done by way of curing the "brown specks" is to rigorously avoid the heat of the sun. Five minutes with sun rays on the face will produce numbers of new freckles, to say nothing of increasing the size and color of those already present.

The girl who values a good complexion must carry a parasol. One walk in the rays of the sun will undo weeks of trouble—though the heat will not exactly produce spots, it so burns it that the scarf, or outer skin, peels off, making it look coarse,

Laundry Helps for Hot Summer Days

THE first thing to be remembered in the washing of clothes is to avoid all use of chemicals, as they are likely to rot the fibres of the cloth.

One thing, however, which is a valuable assistance to getting the dirt out of clothing without a great deal of rubbing is the use of a small quantity of benzine in the water.

Put the soiled clothes to soak over night and put in the water a half teacupful of benzine for a moderate sized washing—that of four or five persons. When the boiling begins add another half teacupful of benzine. This will have such an effect that the dirt can be removed from the clothing with very little rubbing and there will be no odor of benzine about the cloth. A pint of benzine will do for two large washings, and benzine is cheap.

A laundress of large experience claims that the most difficult thing of all in laundry work—the doing up of shirt bosoms—may be made highly successful by observing the following procedure:

The hot starch is made not very thick, and a teaspoonful is allowed to a shirt bosom; the hotter the liquid is the better. Apply a tablespoonful at a time, rubbing in well before putting on more, and after the right side will take up no more, apply to the under side. Unless the starch is well rubbed in the iron will stick and specks and blisters will appear.

The hot starching is done first, the bosom is allowed to dry and then the cold starching is done by dipping the bosom in the liquid, wringing out and rubbing slightly. After an hour or so, iron, first rubbing the bosom carefully with a cloth wrung out in hot water, to equalize the starch on the surface.

A thin cloth is to be laid over the bosom the first time the iron is passed over it. When this is removed dampen the surface of the bosom a little, and finally iron carefully until the finish is satisfactory. Let the outside cover of the ironing board be woollen cloth and the bosom will not stick to it.

The tendency of hot starch to adhere to the iron may be avoided by putting kerosene or spermaceti into it. A bit of white soap dissolved in the water used to prepare the cold starch each week will have the same effect.

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

CHAPTER XC.—(Continued)

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner.

IT was awful to have these suspicions about her own sister, whom she had cared for and looked after so long with almost a mother's solicitude, because of the undeveloped mind that had left Freda, whilst almost a woman in years, as irresponsible as a child.

As she sat in the schoolroom this morning, trying to throw herself into her new duties, all these thoughts kept coming between Olga and her work—an army of conflicting thoughts that she could not thrust aside.

If Freda had done this thing—the shrinking woman had to face the possibility—then she could never hope to prove her innocence; all her life she must rest under this awful stigma, must always go in fear of arrest.

For if Freda had done this thing, how could she denounce her own sister, clear herself at her sister's cost?—even though Freda had been willing to save herself by keeping silent when her innocent sister fell under this hideous charge.

But even with that bitter thought Olga made excuses in her mind for the girl she had watched over and cared for so tenderly; Freda was only a child in mind, she kept telling herself, and, like a child, had been too frightened to speak. And if this terrible suspicion proved well founded she and not this poor, irresponsible child must suffer; she could never denounce Freda.

But she must know the truth.

Freda was in the care of friends who had taken compassion on her; how was she to be communicated with.

Olga knew that almost certainly Freda would be under the espionage of the police; that, when the police are searching for someone "wanted," their first thought is to keep close watch on the relatives of that person, ascertain what letters they receive.

She dared not write; the letter might be intercepted. John Herries could not go—Freda would recognize him, and that might bring danger to him. How was she to communicate with Freda?

Suddenly an idea came into her troubled mind like an inspiration.

Jim had carried a message for her once; why should he not do so again?

Jim should be her messenger to Freda.

CHAPTER XCI.

Rosamund's Conclusion

OLGA felt a sense of relief when school was over that morning. Under ordinary circumstances she would have found her duties easy, but to-day it was an effort to concentrate her mind upon her work, to detach herself from those thoughts of Freda that has haunted her since Armadale's words.

She had sent a note to one of the school children, asking John Herries if he could come to see her that day; the question of Jim that had unexpectedly arisen had to be settled; and she wanted to ask his advice about making the boy her messenger to Freda.

John Herries answered her summons sooner than she had expected.

About half-past one, just as her midday meal was over, his tall figure came swinging along the road toward her house. Jim, who was up and refreshed after his sleep, saw him approaching from the doorway. Herries was not alone. Walking by his side was a slender woman dressed in deep mourning.

Through the window Olga watched Herries and Rosamund Wynter pass, before the girl turned down a cross lane which would take her by a short cut to her home.

In spite of herself Olga could not repress the jealous gleam that flashed into her face as she watched the man and the girl linger talking at the cross roads before they parted and Herries came on to her cottage.

When Herries had told Olga of his plan for buying off the real Miss Wynne, that she might assume the English school mistress' identity, he had thought it a plan that would smooth out difficulties for the present. She could at least snatch an interspace of peace and rest; no one could associate the Miss Wynne—who it was well known had been engaged from England—with the woman for whom the police were searching.

But one factor of unrest he had not been able to guard against in his plans.

Olga was not blind to it. Installed here, seeing him daily, in her heart this woman was not blind to that deepening menace to her peace of mind that Herries had hoped his plan secured for her—a danger that lay in that very fact that, day by day, she would be near him, see him constantly, even if it were only a chance meeting in the street.

She loved this man who had helped her—she who told herself she had no right to love.

A Breaking Heart

Had she been wise to come, where, apart from the secret link that bound them, she must see him often.

She was a fool, she told herself, impatiently, even to dream that the ultimate happiness, which seemed to her the greatest happiness the world could hold for her, could be hers.

If only things had been otherwise—those that had not been her fault had nevertheless built their high wall of insurmountable circumstance around her—then, perhaps—and there was a sweetness amid the bitter even to dream of it—she might have won his love, might have become his wife. If only things had been otherwise!—that oldest, bitterest cry in this old, tired world.

And so she called herself a fool now, to feel that jealous pang, as she saw John Herries lingering talking to Miss Wynter—but that made the pang no less keen.

"They said Miss Wynter and he will make a match of it some day," the man who drove her from the station had said.

Was there any truth in the man's gossip? Olga had been asking herself that question all the time, when Rosamund had introduced herself the morning after her arrival.

Suspicious Again

Miss Wynter's father had been drowned at sea, she heard, and the sight of the pale, sad, girlish face would have appealed to all that was sympathetic in her, but for that feeling which she knew was unworthy, yet which, in spite of herself, she felt made her manner to Miss Wynter stiff and cold and ungracious.

Was there any truth in the driver's gossip? she asked herself again as she watched the man she loved holding the hand of that sad-faced girl in black.

The two parted and Herries came quickly toward the cottage.

Rosamund turned down the sidepath on her way home; but, before the trees hid her from sight, her eyes, following Herries, suddenly fell on the boy who had come to the open doorway of Miss Wynne's cottage.

Rosamund paused in surprise, wondering for a moment where she had seen the boy before; the next instant it flashed across her.

It was the boy who had accosted her at the Flower Show, who had come with a message to John Herries from "a woman in peril"—an urgent appeal for his help.

The woman who had sent that strange appeal to John Herries had been the girl she saw with him at the boathouse; he had told her that on the night he asked her to trust him—asked her to be his wife.

But what was this boy doing at Miss Wynne's cottage? The coincidence seemed so strange.

A swift thought flashed across Rosamund's mind, bringing a startled expression to her face.

A thought that seemed too wild and improbable to be considered seriously—and yet there was something about Miss Wynne that suggested the tall, supple figure of the woman she had seen outlined against the moonlit lake. Her instinct leaped to the swift conclusion.

"If I saw that woman who calls herself Miss Wynne without those disfiguring glasses," Rosamund said slowly to herself, "I should recognize in her the woman of the boathouse!"

TO BE CONTINUED.

Advice to Anxious Sweethearts

By Beatrice Fairfax

TELL THE TRUTH

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am almost nineteen years of age and have been going out occasionally with a young man about the same age. I know by his manner and actions that he cares for me very much, and he has often told me that he could not think of ever being separated; but on the other hand, I do not care for him, and feel happier when he is not with me. I cannot tell him so, as I am afraid of the consequences. Now, Miss Fairfax, please tell me what to do, as I really do not care for him at all, and do not want him to think that I do. N. L.

TELL him the truth, my dear; he will get over it; men always do. Let him see that you do not care for his society; do not accept his invitations and do not ask him to call on you.

LABOR TO CO-OPERATE WITH LEAGUE

Enthusiastic Meeting of Labor Men Discusses Situation and Forms Club.

"TIME FOR LABOR TO ACT"

With a view to the co-operation of the two organizations, the Boston Wage Earners' Central Club, at a meeting last night in Wells Memorial Building, appointed a committee to confer with the officials of the Independence League. The committee is composed of President John E. Potts, First Vice-President Jeremiah J. Donovan, Second Vice-President Charles E. O'Donnell and Secretary Harry Noble.

In making the motion, Recording Secretary Thomas M. Nolan said: "The Independence League is working along the same lines as this organization, I believe, and its constitution admits desirable persons whom we could not take in.

"To get the matter on a working basis, I move that the club appoint a committee of four to confer with the officials of the Independence League to see if we cannot co-operate in the work we are undertaking."

The club is going to make an issue of the restriction of injunctions, and voted to invite Granville S. McFarland to address the members at their next meeting on that subject.

It was decided that candidates desiring indorsement must submit their names to the executive committee of the Central Club to be reported on at a meeting of the club later. Many new members were admitted, fifty candidates being enrolled from Ward 1 alone. The next meeting will be held August 31.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, AUGUST 18, 1906

Just a LITTLE Imperial--Isn't It?

Does This Country Need Royal Fleet Reviews?

On the 3d of September Mr. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay is to review "a fleet of the United States."

There will be a grand parade, which, it is estimated, will cost this country about $500,000.

Ninety vessels in all will parade, including battleships, torpedo boats, submarines, etc.

More than a thousand guns will make a noise to please him. Almost a thousand officers will stand straight and polite.

And more than fifteen thousand men of the navy will be on hand.

Tens of thousands of dollars will be shot off in powder. It will be a great day when the fleet of the country is brought around to Oyster Bay to the back door of the gentleman who is hired as the country's chief executive.

Of course, this matter isn't VERY important. In our government of waste the spending of a half million more or less isn't a very big thing.

But it does seem rather silly for a country to imagine that it hires a President for $50,000 a year, and then have him spend $500,000 of the public's money in organizing an amusing naval review, and a hundred thousand dollars more in using warships for private yachts, etc.

It is a LITTLE bit unlike a republic.

When you learn that the Emperor William has summoned the German fleet to manoeuvre and fire while he twirls his proud mustache it seems quite reasonable.

And when the chubby King of England does the same thing, that seems reasonable—for we realize that a king must do something to make him seem important.

But Mr. Roosevelt has MANY opportunities in this country. There are many things that need to be done. There are many taxpayers to whom five hundred thousand dollars seems a GOOD DEAL for noise and gunpowder.

Would it not be more along republican lines to let the fleet attend to its business in various parts of our waters, let the President attend to HIS business as executive, and not have an imperial and certainly UN-REPUBLICAN squandering of public money for the brief amusement of the President and a few of his friends?

The Sorrows of the Professional Gambler

From Saratoga, where racing is now on the card, comes the startling intelligence that the talented gentlemen who make up the convenient American institution known as the betting ring are losing heavily to the general public.

This must be heartrending to the talented gentlemen, and a new, delightful sensation to the general public.

Perhaps, if the horses continue running true to form, the beautiful resort near Albany will have a new coat-of-arms, representing a couchant bettor with a large bank account and a grouchant bookmaker walking home.

It is really too bad about the bookmakers. Day after day a deluded public pours its tribute into the square boxes of the "square" gamblers who lay the odds, and makes no protest.

Once in a while—very seldom, indeed—comes a day when three or four favorites win, and from the betting ring rises a long, lingering wail of agony and despair.

There is no harder loser in the world than the professional gambler. When he is meeting the small obligations of a day out of the big winnings of a week he may succeed in looking pleasant, but two or three losing streaks will drive away the artificial dimples.

From the field bookmaker with his twenty-dollar bankroll to the "gentleman gambler" in his palace, they are all brothers under their skins. When the Goddess of Chance ignores the percentage in their favor and sets them back they show clearly the whine and fangs of the wolf.

Great is Saratoga! It is too bad that the other tracks in the big racing circuit cannot yield the same gratifying results. Then there would be no bookmakers.

The more bookmakers we keep out of the United States the more bank cashiers we shall be able to keep out of Canada.

Over the Seas to Daylight Land

By Harry B. Metcalf

LITTLE lips smiling the sweetness of rest;
Little eyes closed by the magic of sleep;
Lulled by a song from a fond mother's breast,
A Little Boy starts o'er an ocean deep.
Pushing from shore 'neath the veil of the dark,
Dream sailors over him guardingly stand—
No craft so staunch as his crib of a bark
For the wonderful voyage to Daylight Land.

MARVELLOUS visions around him unfold
As glides his sound vessel out into the foam.
Fairyland shores lined with sea-shells of gold,
Castles where doll-kings and queens are at home.
Rainbow-hued islands o'errunning with toys,
Tin soldiers marching behind a tin band—
Oh! what a treat is our good Little Boy's
As he speeds to the portals of Daylight Land!

ANGEL wings sheltering all the night through,
Flutter above the soft, shadowy sails;
Man-in-the-Moon soon is smiling adieu,
Star overhead into nothingness pales.
Bird songs proclaim a new welcome from shore,
Sun-gems are blazing in crescents of sand—
Little Boy's eyes are wide open once more,
All safe in the harbor of Daylight Land!

Little Editorials from the People

A PROOF OF POPULARITY

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

My business necessitates my riding over the electric car lines in this section of country some 200 miles a week, and I have often noticed that among the passengers certainly ninety odd per cent. are reading the AMERICAN. I mention this fact to show the popularity of your paper over the other Boston dailies, and I regard it as a deserved compliment to your ably edited and well-gotten-up publication.

WILLIAM P. GILMORE.

NEW CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

One reads in the papers continually of proposed consumptive hospitals. Of what good is a sick man or woman? Why not prevent such a pestilence? If there were municipal dairies, just as there are municipal baths, phthisis would almost disappear, and if the citizens had intelligent councillors and aldermen, who would frame laws that no house should contain more inhabitants than would give each individual sleeping in a room at least 800 cubic feet of air, with an adequate supply of light, consumption could be wiped out. Under present circumstances law is made to benefit landlords, and murder the poor taxpayer. These municipal undertakings would cost nothing, as the receipts would more than liquidate the expenses. Is the Eastern Yankee so obtuse that he cannot grasp the potentialities in these simple propositions?

HOME. TO-DAY.

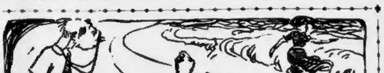
MEIN LIEBER LOOEY—Ve haf receifed your letter from Vilmington, Del., und ve vas glat to know dot you vas prosperizing on der road.

Your mother und me vas at der seashore und ve yust got back, poorer, thinner und mit a vistful look in our eyes.

Abouid two veeks ago I set to your mother at home vun efening: "My dear, it is such a hotness in der humidity of the atmosphericals, derefore, half ve no friends in Atlantic City to vich ve owe a wisit? Remember, our honor is at stake, because ve should pay our debts alvays. Try hard to recollection some vun ve owe a wisit to!"

Your mother set: "Dare vas der Picklesauers on Kentucky afenue. I entertained Mrs. Picklesauer und her daughter, Harmonica, at a luncheon vun day. I met dem in a compartment store, und ve hat some shredded canteloupe and prunes passepartout. She inwited me to call on her ven I vas in Atlantic City—perhaps ve owe her, yes!"

"Does der Picklesauers lif near der Boardvalk vare ve can sit in der parlor vindow und can see der wisions of fair vimmen und brafe mens mit shapes on dem like a Spanish mackerel as dey emerge from der briny billows?" I inkvired.



"—Und brafe mens mit shapes on dem like a Spanish mackerel"

"No, der Boardvalk is some distance und quite unseeable from der Picklesauer house," your mother responded.

"Gif yourself a receipt for dot debt; it is paid," I vispered. "Try now to pay someding near der Boardvalk. Vot is der use to meet a social obligation unless ve get a rebate?"

"Dare vas Mr. und Mrs. Shauerbath," set your mother. "Dey keep a boarding house near der ocean und I entertained dem vunce on a car by having a dispute mit der conductor abouid my fare. Mebbe now is der appointed time to pay such a social obligation, yes."

Mit a burning desire in our hearts to be honest before der vorld und pay dis wisit vich ve owed so long und so unchustly ve packed up a few hand baggages und rushed to Atlantic City.

Ve soon found der Shauerbath boarding house, und der Shauerbaths receifed us mit open arms, open faces und open pocketbooks.

Dey immediately took down all der social bars und put us at our ease by charging us fifteen dollars a day for vun room ofer a bathing pavilion, und ven ve eggasplained mit tears in our eyes dot ve vas on a pilgrimage to pay our honest debts mit a long forgotten wisit dey smiled feverishly und set dey vould rodder ve owed dem der wisit forefer if ve vould pay dem cash for der room.

Und dis is how it came abouid dot your mother und I had to put on patent eyeglasses so ve could see eferyding double und try to get our money's vorth at Atlantic City.

Much could be said abouid de sights ve saw, und some day ven my pocketbook loses its hectic flush mebbe I vill say it, but not now, Looey, not now.

Among some of der eggscitement vich your mother dragged me into vas a very svell ball vich vas gifen on vun of der piers ouid ofer der boozum of der ocean.

I vould like to mention der names of a few of dose I met at dis ocean Ball, und vot dey vore, yust to show you, Looey, dot my powers of opservationment vas no slouch, alretty.

Among der Smart Setters mit vich we minkled vas dese, as following: Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Pigglesouse, Mr. und Mrs. Heine Ganderkurds und deir daughter, Concertina; Mr. und Mrs. Beanlifter und deir son, Pinochle; Mr. und Mrs. Gust Schmittpiggle und deir two daughters, Panatella und Perfecto; Mr. und Mrs. Hoffbrew, und deir niece, Marcedes Cauliflower, und many udders too notable to mention.

Mrs. Pigglesouse vore heavy blue satin, appliqued across der corsage mit four per cent. Guffernment bonds und trimmed mit vite chiffon. She vore abouid eight volts of alternating diamonds.

Mrs. Ganderkurds looked luffly in a creation in three acts literally translated from der French, und cut bias eferyvare eggscept der bill. She vore enough pearls to short-circuit abouid nine volts of diamonds.

Miss Concertina Ganderkurds vore a charming confectionery of taffy-colored bombasine hand-painted mit Standard Oil stock across der bodice und trimmed mit magenta moire antique mit colorado madura lace. She vore vun arc light at der apex of der t'roat.

Der ball vas a big success, but ve left early because, Looey, vat is der use to pay fifteen dollars a day for a room ven you ain'd in it?

Yours mit luff,
D. DINKELSPIEL,
